Where to Find the Windows Wallpaper Location on Your PC

Posted by Robert Hayes on November 6, 2019

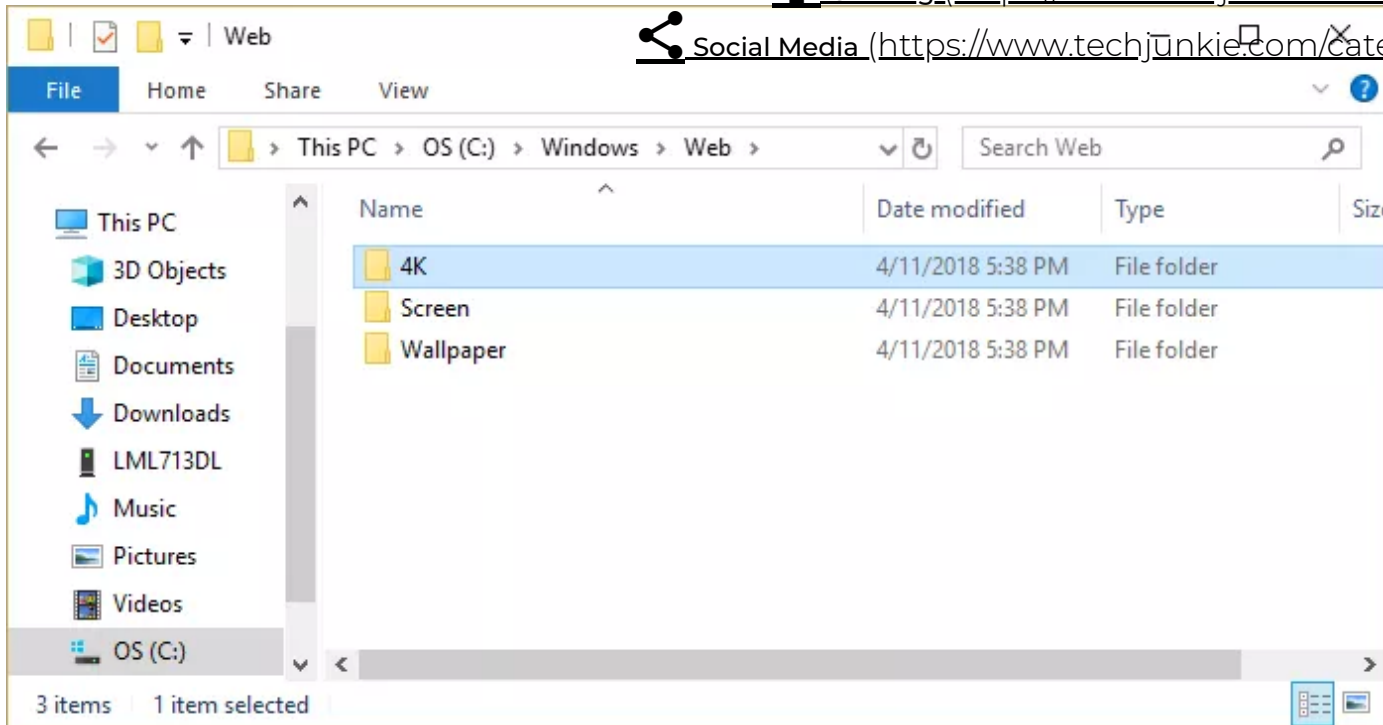

One of the few things that brings every day workers like us a heightened sense of morale is the ability to customize the computer screen you stare at for eight hours a day with something that gives us a little bit of joy. Every version of Windows, from the ancient days of Windows 3.1 all the way through Windows 10, has brought with it a library of wallpaper images for users of the operating system to put on their desktop. Wallpapers are the images that you can set as your background for your desktop, and serve to remind us that there's much more in this world than the text and figures that comprise most of our day. Whether you want to vary your viewing with some abstract art, or stare blissfully at a bucolic field with no businesses, buses, or budgets in sight, wallpaper give our cubicles a little life. No wonder you might want to choose one that inspires you!

FINDING YOUR WALLPAPER IMAGES

First, you might want to go shopping for the images available on your computer. If you would like to use the images in your Windows 10 wallpaper installation in some other way – for example, as a background on another device or on an older version of Windows – you will need to find the actual location of the files being displayed. Fortunately, this isn't difficult.

(https://i1.wp.com/www.techjunkie.com/wp-content/uploads/2015/01/wallpaper1.png?ssl=1).

By default, Windows 10 stores your wallpaper images in the “C:\Windows\Web” directory. You can access this directory very simply by clicking in the search bar in the Windows 10 task bar and type “e:\Windows\web” and hitting return. The directory will pop right up. There are several subdirectories where your wallpapers could be stored; just click around through the directories and you will find your images.

USING WINDOWS 10 THEMES

However, many Windows 10 users don't use the standard wallpaper files – instead, they use Windows 10 Themes. Microsoft has made hundreds of themes available for free via the Microsoft store and some of them are quite spectacular. You can browse through the available themes here <https://support.microsoft.com/category/security/us/help/13768/desktop-themes-featured>). These themes can range from your favorite game, to a collection of splendid outdoor views, to a collection that gives you that executive je ne sais quoi. Once you've downloaded a theme, you're ready to access those files and bring them to the forefront. They are located in your local user directory, which is rather lengthy for typing in – fortunately there's a shortcut.

TECH

. \(https://i0.wp.com/www.techjunkie.com/wp-content/uploads/2015/01/wallpaper2.png?ssl=1\)

Again, click in the search bar in the Windows 10 task bar and this time type “%localappdata%\Microsoft\Windows\Themes” and hit return. The themes directory will launch. The image files will be found in the subdirectory for the appropriate theme – for example, in the window shown above, you’d click on “Ancient E” to find the files for the Ancient Egypt theme, which is the only theme installed on my computer. (Any other history fiends out there?)

If you want to find the Windows 10 lock screen images, they’re a little trickier to find – but we have a helpful walkthrough that will teach you how to find the Windows Spotlight lock screen images.
. \(https://www.tekrevue.com/tip/find-windows-spotlight-lock-screen-images-windows-10/\)

Most of the Windows 10 wallpaper and theme images come in standard pixel sizes ranging from 1920×1200 to 3840×1200, and they’ll look great on most screens and devices without any fuss.

Let's say you really, really like the theme you snagged at work, but you're not sure you'll be able to grab it for another device. Simply copy the desired image to a flash drive or online storage service and then transfer it to your mobile device or other PC and use the appropriate settings there to configure it as your background wallpaper.

<https://il.wp.com/www.techjunkie.com/wp-content/uploads/2015/01/windows-10-wallpaper-images.jpg?ssl=1>

An important note, however: these images are owned or licensed by Microsoft for the personal non-commercial use of Windows users. That means you're free to enjoy them for your own personal use, but don't use them in advertising, videos, or for any other commercial purpose. You will be found, and Microsoft will not be amused.

Found another location...A coworker changed my background picture to something hilarious. I changed it back to my default image but the picture they swapped it to remained under “Choose your picture”. Location where it was stored:

C:\Users\%username%\AppData\Local\Packages\Microsoft.Windows.Photos_8wekyb3d8bbwe\LocalState\PhotosAppBackground

This showed just a few results from a simple search of C: drive for the word wallpaper but still does not show us the long list of images we see in background on windows 10.

After setting to Change Picture every 10 minutes I have seen some Great Beautiful images but I would love to finally be able to customize the list and drop the few that I don't like as much. Also did not get anywhere when I received the same answer from Microsoft tech support teams.

I found It under C:\Users\AppData\Local\Microsoft\Windows\Themes

Note 1. MAJA is my computer name. Here u have to go for yours

Note 2. AppData is hidden so make sure you choose to view Hidden else u won't find it.

Easiest way to find is search by name of the Theme you have downloaded. Let's say you downloaded theme on NASA then Go to C drive and search NASA..

In the latest version of Windows 10, you can find the individual background images of installed themes at:

%LOCALAPPDATA%\Microsoft\Windows\Themes

Justmeok... IT WORKED!!!!

I went into pictures, made a folder then went to C:___LocalMicrosoftWindowsTheme. where i left blank that is your user name for PC. click on themes and you will find the background.

I put every pic in the Slide Shows folder I made. Now I go to settings and personalization, set background to slideshow, and click browse to find your folder that you created and choose this folder and set when you want the slideshow to rotate the pics... I chose to change my pics once every day and turned on shuffle to randomize it.

Hi Faye

I wanted to do the same and found the images from the downloaded theme packs here on my win 10 pc

C:\Users\UserName\AppData\Local\Microsoft\Windows\Themes\ThemeName\DesktopBackground

Hope this works for you too!

Faye Green February 26, 2016 at 9:02 am (https://www.techjunkie.com/windows-wallpaper-location/#comment-38430).

I found the files, and was able to extract all the pics in each theme, but it only showed up blank in the theme pack.

I am trying to get all the pics out of each of the 14 theme packs and have them all together so the slide show would be continuous and random pics. I was able to do this in windows 7 and 8.1.

I just don't want one theme looping the same pics.

I have different themes that I want to mesh all the pictures together... nature, butterflies, birds, wolf, scenic landscape, spring, fall, summer, winter, spectacular skies, etc. Do i need to make a separate folder for this and take out the pictures from each theme.

Finally, after spending a couple hours trying to search the system files reading several blogs, it appears MS has made these photos (full *.jpg) readily available to download from the main website now at <http://windows.microsoft.com/en-US/windows/wallpaper> (<http://windows.microsoft.com/en-US/windows/wallpaper>). It's great, now you can get all the images from around the world, not just your default country profile. You can also download a theme but it does hide those individual files. Enjoy either way.
