Windows Calculator^[1] is a pre-installed application that is available on each Windows desktop computer and laptop. It comes with a set of pre-installed default apps, including Windows Store, 3D Builder, Maps, Camera, Calendar, Calculator, Microsoft Edge, Groove Music, and some others. Unfortunately, all of them might crash or become unresponsive any minute.

Many Windows 10 users reported about issues with a corrupted calculator app. The app does not open completely or opens, but then suddenly freezes and closes automatically. This might happen due to Windows updates, driver-related problems, third-party software and other issues. Fortunately, all of these problems can be fixed quite easily, and you can get to your counting again.

While some people use them on the daily basis, others find Calculator and other apps useless and want to get rid of them in order to save up space on the hard drive or speed up the device. However, unlike many users think, pre-installed apps do not run in the background continuously, which means that they are using CPU^[2] only when the user starts the app manually.

Besides, apps like Calendar or Calculator take up very little space, so removing them won't definitely solve the problem of free space lack. If you are not planning to use a pre-installed app, you can always Unpin it from Start. However, removal of default tools is not recommended due to the risk of damaging some crucial system files or breaking Windows 10 install.

Therefore, you should not try to fix corrupted calculator app by simply uninstalling it. This may lead to further problems. Even if you use this app rarely, it's better to solve its problems correctly. Our team is here to help you.
